1 INTRODUCTION

2 1. Petitioners bring this suit to seek reimbursement for families from whom Riverside
3 County illegally collected millions of dollars in juvenile administrative fees. Riverside County 4 engaged in a continuing pattern of calculating, charging, collecting, and pocketing these fees, while 5 disregarding its statutory and constitutional duties to assess liability for fees only on families able 6 to pay them, and to assess liability with adequate notice and opportunity to be heard. Because 7 Riverside County failed to comply with these legal obligations, its continuous collection of these 8 fees violated both state statutes and the California and United States Constitutions.

9 2. Until Senate Bill 190 (2017) (“SB 190”) eliminated counties’ statutory authority
10 to do so, Riverside County charged fees to families for administrative costs associated with their 11 children’s involvement in the juvenile court system. These fees included daily “costs of support” 12 for each day a youth spent in a juvenile institution.

13 3. Riverside County’s continuous efforts to collect these juvenile administrative fees
14 were illegal, because the County did not comply with its mandatory duties under Welfare &
15 Institutions Code Sections 903 and 903.45 in effect at the time the County charged families for these 16 fees.¹ These duties included assessing a family’s ability to pay the fees before imposing them and 17 obtaining a binding court order authorizing the County to collect the fees. The Legislature enacted 18 these duties in part to ensure that liability for juvenile administrative fees was only imposed on 19 people who could afford to pay such fees and to prevent excessive charges for these fees. Welf. &
20 Inst. Code § 903(c). Riverside County’s continuous collection efforts also violated Petitioners’
21 constitutional rights, because the County failed to provide families with due process before 22 beginning collection of these fees.
23

24 4. For more than ten years, Riverside County continuously pursued Daniel and Shirley
25 Freeman for approximately $8000 in juvenile administrative fees related to their grandson’s 26

27 _____
28 ¹ Unless otherwise specified, all further statutory references are to the California Welfare & Institutions Code (2017).

1 involvement in the juvenile court system. During this time, the Freemans were both older than 65
2 and retired, and their primary source of income was Social Security retirement. They were also 3 raising three of their grandsons whose mother had passed away. Riverside County did not evaluate 4 the Freemans' ability to pay thousands of dollars in juvenile administrative fees, did not provide the 5 Freemans with notice of their right to contest the County's assessment and collection of these fees,
6 and did not obtain an enforceable court order against the Freemans. Instead, for over ten years, the 7 County continuously misled the Freemans into making monthly payments that totaled over $3000,
8 which was an extreme hardship given the Freemans' fixed income and financial circumstances.

9 5. For approximately ten years, Riverside County also continuously pursued Tiffine
10 Hansbrough for approximately $5500 in juvenile administrative fees related to her son's
11 involvement in the juvenile court system. When collection began, Ms. Hansbrough was raising two 12 sons and a nephew on her own. Her main source of income was through California's In-Home
13 Support Services Program for time spent caring for one of her sons and her nephew who have 14 disabilities. Riverside County did not evaluate Ms. Hansbrough's ability to pay thousands of dollars
15 in juvenile administrative fees, did not provide Ms. Hansbrough with notice of her right to contest
16 the County's assessment and collection of these fees, and did not obtain an enforceable court order
17 against Ms. Hansbrough. Because of her financial circumstances, Ms. Hansbrough was not able to 18 pay these fees despite Riverside County's continuous collection activities, including numerous 19 collection letters, frequent collection calls, and threats of tax refund intercepts.

20 6. In December 2019, Petitioners Shirley Freeman, Daniel Freeman, and Tiffine
21 Hansbrough, on behalf of themselves and other families similarly situated, sent a demand letter and 22 filed a government claim with Riverside County; in both the Petitioners demanded that Riverside
23 County stop its continuous and ongoing illegally collection of millions of dollars of juvenile 24 administrative fees and reimburse families for fees already collected. Petitioners then submitted
25 their original lawsuit for filing in March 2020, seeking the same relief. Riverside County satisfied
26 Petitioners' first demand in April 2020 by ending collection of and discharging all juvenile 27 administrative fees it had been continuing to collect from families. Petitioners now submit this 28 Supplemental and Amended Petition to reflect the County's April 2020 action and to clarify that

1 their lawsuit is now limited to their second demand: the return of money previously collected from
2 families where Riverside County did not comply with its statutory obligations under Sections 903
3 and 903.45, or its constitutional due process obligations.

4 PARTIES

5 7. Petitioner Shirley Freeman is a resident of Riverside County, California. Within the 6 past year, Ms. Freeman has paid a tax within and to Riverside County.

7 8. Petitioner Daniel Freeman is a resident of Riverside County, California. Within the 8 past year, Mr. Freeman has paid a tax within and to Riverside County.

9 9. Petitioner Tiffine Hansbrough is a resident of Riverside County, California. Within 10 the past year, Ms. Hansbrough has paid a tax within and to Riverside County.

11 10. Petitioners are beneficially interested in Riverside County’s lawful compliance with 12 its statutory requirements, including under Sections 903 and 903.45, for charging parents and 13 guardians juvenile administrative fees and collecting such fees.

14 11. Riverside County’s obligation to comply with the statutory requirements of Sections
15 903 and 903.45, and with state and federal constitutional protections, apply to Petitioners as they 16 apply to all parents and guardians whose children were involved in the juvenile court system in 17 Riverside County.

18 12. Petitioners seek relief on behalf of themselves and others similarly situated.

19 13. Respondent Riverside County is a political body of the State of California.

20 14. Respondent Riverside County Probation Department (“Probation”) is a department
21 within Riverside County and is responsible for the County’s juvenile probation services, both those 22 provided within institutions and within the community.

23 15. Respondent Ronald L. Miller is the Chief Probation Officer for Riverside County.
24 Petitioners sue him in his official capacity only. In his official role, he is responsible for Probation’s 25 administration and compliance with laws and policies governing Riverside County’s juvenile 26 probation services, both those provided within institutions and within the community.

27
28

1 16. Unless otherwise stated, all references to “Riverside County” include Respondent
2 Probation and Respondent Miller, who are, respectively, a department of the County and an
3 employee of the County.

4 VENUE

5 17. Venue in this Court is appropriate under Code of Civil Procedure Section 394 as 6 Riverside County is a Respondent.

7 STATUTORY FRAMEWORK

8 18. Prior to the enactment of SB 190, Section 903 allowed counties to seek 9 reimbursement from parents and guardians for the “reasonable costs of support” of a youth while 10 the youth was “placed, or detained in, or committed to, any institution or other place pursuant to 11 Section 625 or pursuant to an order of the juvenile court.” Welf. & Inst. Code § 903(a).

12 19. In creating such liability for parents and guardians for costs of support, the 13 Legislature made clear its “intent . . . to protect the fiscal integrity of the county, to protect persons 14 against whom the county seeks to impose liability from excessive charges, to ensure reasonable 15 uniformity throughout the state in the level of liability being imposed, and to ensure that liability is 16 imposed only on persons with the ability to pay.” Welf. & Inst. Code § 903(c).

17 20. Accordingly, before liability could be imposed, a county was required to “evaluat[e] 18 a family’s financial ability to pay.” Welf. & Inst. Code § 903(c). In doing so, the county was 19 required to “take into consideration the family’s income, the necessary obligations of the family, 20 and the number of persons dependent upon this income.” Id.

21 21. A county could elect, under Section 903.45, to designate a county financial 22 evaluation officer to evaluate parents’ and guardians’ ability to pay juvenile administrative fees.
23 Welf. & Inst. Code § 903.45. Similar to Section 903(c), in evaluating a parent or guardian’s ability
24 to pay, the county financial evaluation officer was required to take into consideration the family’s
25
26
27
28

1 26. Riverside County’s policies and practices for assessing parents’ and guardians’
2 liability for juvenile administrative fees—including costs of support—and collecting such fees did
3 not satisfy the requirements of Sections 903 and 903.45 or the Due Process Clauses of the state and 4 federal constitutions.

5 27. Probation requested orders from the juvenile court with standard terms related to 6 reimbursement for juvenile administrative fees. The juvenile court generally included these terms
7 in its orders. However, those orders did not include any imposition of liability on the parents or 8 guardian, or any findings or assessment regarding parents’ or guardians’ ability to pay. The standard
9 terms merely stated that the County was authorized to collect these fees pursuant to Section 903 et
10 seq., in an amount to be determined, and that parents and guardians were to cooperate with Probation 11 and/or Enhanced Collections. Consequently, by themselves those terms were legally insufficient to 12 obligate parents and guardians to reimburse the County for any juvenile administrative fees.

13 28. Upon information and belief, Riverside County did not hold a hearing or otherwise 14 make any determination regarding parents’ or guardians’ ability to pay costs of support as required
15 by Sections 903 and 903.45.

16 29. Upon information and belief, Riverside County did not maintain any policies or 17 guidelines relating to the evaluation of parents’ and guardians’ ability to pay or to obtaining a final 18 court order imposing liability for juvenile administrative fees, including any policies or guidelines 19 relating to consideration of a family’s income, the necessary obligations of the family, and the 20 number of persons dependent upon this income.

21 30. Riverside County failed to provide parents and guardians with adequate notice of 22 their potential liability for juvenile administrative fees, including notice of the Respondents’
23 determination of a parent’s or guardian’s ability to pay any alleged juvenile administrative fees 24 before collection began.

1 31. Riverside County also failed to provide parents and guardians with adequate notice
2 of their opportunity to dispute the Respondents' allegations of liability for juvenile administrative 3 fees and of a parent's or guardian's ability to pay such fees, including a full and fair hearing.

4 32. As a result, Riverside County failed "to ensure that liability [wa]s imposed only on 5 persons with the ability to pay." Welf. & Inst. Code § 903(c); see also Welf. & Inst. Code 6 § 903.45(b).

7 33. Indeed, aside from the standard terms described above, Riverside County did not 8 obtain final court orders imposing liability for specific amounts of juvenile administrative fees based 9 on the parents' and guardians' ability to pay.

10 34. Upon information and belief, Riverside County knew of its obligations to evaluate 11 whether parents and guardians had the ability to pay juvenile administrative fees; to provide 12 adequate notice to parents and guardians regarding their potential liability for such fees; to provide 13 parents and guardians with the opportunity to dispute the County's determinations of liability and 14 ability to pay, and with adequate notice of such opportunity; and to obtain court orders imposing 15 liability upon parents and guardians before it was permitted to collect any money from them.

16 35. As a result of Riverside County's conduct described above, Petitioners did not know
17 they had the right to have their ability to pay assessed before any liability was imposed and Riverside
18 County could begin collection. Had Petitioners known of this right, they would have demanded that 19 their ability to pay be assessed, and Petitioners Shirley and Daniel Freeman would have done so 20 before they paid any money to Riverside County.

21 36. As a result of Riverside County's continuing pattern and course of conduct described 22 above, Petitioners did not know that Riverside County could only collect juvenile administrative 23 fees pursuant to a court order establishing the amount of their liability. They did not know that such 24 court orders were not issued regarding their liability. Had Petitioners known a necessary court order
25
26
27
28

1 requiring them to pay juvenile administrative fees did not exist, they would have challenged
2 Riverside County's continuous collection activities.

3 37. Instead of complying with the mandatory statutory and constitutional procedures set
4 forth above, upon information and belief, Probation tracked the number of days youth spent in 5 detention and calculated the costs of support for such detention stays pursuant to the fee schedule
6 established by Riverside County. Probation maintained these costs of support totals in its Juvenile 7 Adult Management System ("JAMS") computer system and transmitted them to Enhanced
8 Collections through JAMS.

9 38. Though Riverside County contracted with Enhanced Collections to collect juvenile 10 administrative fees on behalf of the County, Enhanced Collections did not assume Riverside
11 County's statutory or constitutional obligations, which included determining parents' and 12 guardians' ability to pay the costs of support claimed by Probation and petitioning for final court 13 orders imposing liability for specific amounts of juvenile administrative fees, including costs of 14 support.

15 39. Enhanced Collections used limited, inquiry-only access to JAMS to determine the 16 total juvenile administrative fees Probation claimed should be collected from parents and guardians.
17 Enhanced Collections could only view the total amount claimed by Probation and had no ability to 18 reduce or otherwise change that amount. Enhanced Collections only had authority to consider 19 parents' and guardians' financial circumstances in order to establish a payment plan for collection.
20

21 40. Upon information and belief, Enhanced Collections remitted the juvenile 22 administrative fees it collected to Riverside County.

23 41. Families entangled in the juvenile court system are a particularly financially
24 vulnerable population that are acutely in need of the statutory limitations and procedural protections
25 afforded to them by Sections 903 and 903.45, and by the California and United States Constitutions.
26
27
28

1 The overwhelming number of families involved in Riverside County’s juvenile court system are 2 low-income, as shown by their qualification for appointed counsel. When saddled with fees related
3 to their child’s involvement in the juvenile court system, parents and guardians are forced to choose
4 between paying for necessities, such as rent, food, medicine, and healthcare bills, and paying these 5 fees to the County. See Policy Advocacy Clinic, University of California, Berkeley School of Law,
6 Making Families Pay: The Harmful, Unlawful, and Costly Practices of Charging Juvenile
7 Administrative Fees in California (March 2017) p. 9–10.

9 42. Moreover, “because youth of color are disproportionately arrested, detained, and 10 punished in the juvenile court system, fees are especially burdensome for families of color.” Id. at 11 9. In Riverside County, Black youth are 7.4 times more likely than their White peers to be detained
12 in juvenile detention, while Latino youth are 1.4 times more likely than their White peers to be 13 detained. Id. at 36. Consequently, the burden of daily costs of support in particular is 14 disproportionately born by the parents and guardians of youth of color.

16 43. As a result of Riverside County’s unlawful assessment and collection activities
17 described above, it collected an average of $35,000 per month in cost of support fees from Riverside
18 families. Based on this estimate, the County would have collected more than $4 million from 19 Riverside families in a ten-year period.

21 44. Riverside County extracted millions of dollars from families who, because of 22 Riverside County’s unlawful and continuous course of conduct, believed they legitimately owed
23 these fees to the County. Petitioners seek relief from this injustice that burdened hard-working 24 families for decades.

1 Shirley and Daniel Freeman

2 45. Shirley and Daniel Freeman have lived in Riverside County since 1995. They have 3 been married for 46 years. Together they raised five children and eight of their twenty 4 grandchildren. They also have thirteen great-grandchildren.

5 46. Daniel Freeman served in the United States Navy until receiving an honorable 6 discharge and then worked his entire adult life to support his family until he injured his foot in 7 approximately 1997. After his injury, he became certified to repair appliances to earn additional 8 income to make ends meet. When he turned 65 in 2000, he started receiving Social Security 9 retirement income, which has been his main source of income from that time through the present.
10

11 47. Shirley Freeman worked in a number of jobs to support her family over the course
12 of her career, including as a cook at the Charles Drew Head Start program in Compton, California.
13 Starting in approximately 2000, Social Security has been her main source of income. Ms. Freeman
14 began receiving spousal Social Security until she became eligible to receive her own Social Security
15 retirement. In 2007, Ms. Freeman was diagnosed with breast cancer, which required chemotherapy
16 and radiation treatment.
17

18 48. On or about February 2008, Riverside County initiated collection activities against 19 the Freemans for reimbursement of juvenile administrative fees, including costs of support, due to 20 their grandson's court-ordered placement in juvenile institutions. These collection activities
21 continued for over ten years through August 2019.
22

23 49. However, Riverside County did not evaluate the Freemans' ability to pay, nor did it
24 obtain a court order imposing liability on the Freemans for juvenile administrative fees before 25 beginning collection efforts.
26
27
28

1 50. Riverside County did not give the Freemans notice of their right to an ability-to-pay
2 determination or of their right to dispute any ability-to-pay determination in court before any
3 liability was imposed.

4 51. As a result, the Freemans did not know they had the right to have their ability to pay
5 assessed before any liability was imposed and before Riverside County began collection efforts.
6 Had the Freemans received notice of this right, they would have demanded that their ability to pay
7 be assessed before they paid any money.
8

9 52. The Freemans did not know that Riverside County could only collect juvenile 10 administrative fees from them pursuant to a court order establishing the amount of their liability.
11 They did not know that such a court order was never issued. Had the Freemans known that a
12 necessary court order requiring them to pay juvenile administrative fees did not exist, the Freemans
13 would not have made payments over the more than ten years in which Riverside County pursued 14 collection.
15

16 53. Despite failing to provide the Freemans these protections, Riverside County, through 17 Probation and Enhanced Collections, represented to the Freemans that they owed Riverside County 18 more than $8000 for juvenile administrative fees. Riverside County began more than ten years of 19 continuous, aggressive, and frequent collection activities in 2008 when the Freemans were both over 20 65 and their main source of income was Social Security. During this period of collection, the 21 Freemans were also supporting three of their grandchildren whose mother had passed away.
22

23 54. These persistent collection activities consisted of repeated phone calls and letters to 24 Ms. Freeman, which she found threatening, upsetting, and stressful.

25 55. Riverside County, however, was not legally authorized to engage in this collection
26 activity to seek reimbursement for juvenile administrative fees. Upon information and belief, 27 Riverside County knew it was required to conduct an ability-to-pay determination, provide the 28

1 Freemans notice of their right to an ability-to-pay determination and of their right to dispute any
2 ability-to-pay determination in court, and obtain a valid court order before engaging in a continuing
3 course of collection activity seeking reimbursement from the Freemans. Because the Respondents
4 failed to comply with these requirements, their continuous assertions that the Freemans owed this 5 money were false.

6
7 56. However, the Freemans were unaware of Riverside County’s illegal conduct. They 8 reasonably believed the Respondents’ assertions and paid approximately $3000 for juvenile 9 administrative fees between 2008 and 2019, despite the hardship these payments imposed on them
10 due to their limited income, struggle to afford basic necessities on a fixed income, and the needs of 11 their dependents.

12
13 57. Even after making monthly payments for more than 10 years, as of August 2019, the 14 Freemans still allegedly owed Riverside County more than $5000.

15
16 58. In August 2019, the Freemans, represented by appointed counsel from the Riverside 17 County Public Defender’s Office, had a hearing in juvenile court. Similar to 2008 when the 18 collection activities began, at the time of this hearing, the Freemans’ main source of income was 19 Social Security retirement.

20
21 59. For the first time, a court assessed the Freemans’ ability to pay and found they were 22 unable to pay any remaining fees. The juvenile court’s August 29, 2019 order stated that “Daniel 23 and Shirley Freeman, are hereby relieved from their financial obligation to pay....” Even as they 24 received this order from the juvenile court, the Freemans reasonably remained unaware of the 25 County’s unlawful conduct.

26
27 60. On December 21, 2019, the Freemans demanded repayment of the approximately 28 $3000 in juvenile administrative fees they paid to Riverside County, but the Respondents have yet to reimburse the Freemans for the ill-gotten funds.

Tiffine Hansbrough

1
2 61. Tiffine Hansbrough has lived in Riverside County for most of her life. On her own,
3 she raised two sons and her nephew, all of whom are now adults. Ms. Hansbrough also has a two-
4 year-old daughter.

5 62. In the last few years, Ms. Hansbrough has worked multiple part-time jobs to support
6 her family. She was also paid through the In-Home Support Services (“IHSS”) Program for her
7 time caring for her partner, who has a disability. Her family also received assistance from 8 California’s food stamp program, CalFresh, and California’s public health insurance program,
9 Medi-Cal.

10 63. On or about August 2010, Riverside County initiated collection activities against Ms.
11 Hansbrough for reimbursement for juvenile administrative fees, including costs of support due to 12 her son’s court-ordered placement in juvenile institutions. For nearly a decade, the County has 13 persisted in its pattern of unlawful collection efforts, and continues to demand payment from Ms.
14 Hansbrough today.

15 64. However, Riverside County did not evaluate Ms. Hansbrough’s ability to pay, nor 16 did it obtain a court order imposing liability on Ms. Hansbrough for juvenile administrative fees 17 before beginning collection.

18 65. Riverside County did not give Ms. Hansbrough notice of her right to an ability-to-19 pay determination or of her right to dispute any ability-to-pay determination in court before any 20 liability was imposed.

21 66. As a result, Ms. Hansbrough did not know she had the right to have her ability to pay 22 assessed before any liability was imposed and before Riverside County began collection activities.
23 Had Ms. Hansbrough received notice of this right, she would have demanded that her ability to pay 24 be assessed.

1 67. Ms. Hansbrough did not know that Riverside County could only collect juvenile 2 administrative fees pursuant to a court order establishing the amount of her liability. She did not
3 know such a court order was not issued. Had Ms. Hansbrough known a necessary court order
4 requiring her to pay juvenile administrative fees did not exist, Ms. Hansbrough would have 5 challenged Riverside County’s collection activities.
6

7 68. Despite failing to provide these protections, Riverside County, through Probation
8 and Enhanced Collections, represented to Ms. Hansbrough that she owed Riverside County over 9 $5500 in juvenile administrative fees and began almost ten years of continuous, aggressive, and 10 frequent collection efforts.

11 69. Riverside County, however, was not legally authorized to engage in this collection
12 activity to seek reimbursement for juvenile administrative fees. Upon information and belief,
13 Riverside County knew it was required to conduct an ability-to-pay determination, provide Ms.
14 Hansbrough notice of her right to an ability-to-pay determination and of her right to dispute any
15 ability-to-pay determination in court, and obtain a valid court order before engaging in a continuing 16 course of collection activity seeking reimbursement from Ms. Hansbrough. Because Riverside
17 County failed to comply with these requirements, its continuous assertions that Ms. Hansbrough 18 owed this money were false.
19

20 70. However, Ms. Hansbrough was unaware of Riverside County’s illegal conduct. She 21 reasonably believed the Respondents’ assertions regarding her alleged liability.
22

23 71. Riverside County began its collection activities in 2010 despite the fact that Ms.
24 Hansbrough’s main source of income at the time was what she received through the IHSS Program
25 for caring for one of her sons and her nephew, both of whom were receiving Supplemental Security
26 Income (“SSI”) due to their disabilities.
27
28

1 72. These juvenile administrative fees were a hardship for Ms. Hansbrough to pay while 2 also affording basic necessities for herself and her family. Despite working—sometimes more than 3 one job at a time—she often faced financial difficulties. She and her partner have dealt with several 4 evictions and threats of evictions, and once had to live out of their vehicle for several months.
5 Despite Riverside County’s unrelenting collection efforts for the past ten years, Ms. Hansbrough
6 was unable to make any payments.
7

8 73. Each time Ms. Hansbrough opened a collection letter asking her to pay over $5500
9 in juvenile administrative fees, she felt physically and mentally unwell. She broke into tears,
10 because she felt like there were no options or help available.
11

12 74. On December 21, 2019, Ms. Hansbrough demanded that Riverside County stop
13 collection activities and repay any amount they collected. Respondents continued to send Ms.
14 Hansbrough collection letters through February 2020 asking her to pay more than $5500 in juvenile 15 administrative fees.
16

17 75. In April 2020, after approximately ten years of continuous collection activities,
18 Riverside County ended collection of more than $5500 of juvenile administrative fees that it claimed 19 Ms. Hansbrough owed.
20

21 Due to the Passage of SB 190, Riverside County Is Now Precluded from Curing their

22 Statutory Violations

23 76. Effective January 1, 2018, the Welfare and Institutions Code was amended by SB 190
24 so that counties can no longer charge parents and guardians for juvenile administrative fees,
25 including costs of support.
26

27 77. Until April 2020, Riverside County continued to seek collection of millions of dollars
28 in juvenile administrative fees that it claims to have assessed prior to January 1, 2018.

1 78. Riverside County’s unlawful assessment and continuous efforts to collect these 2 juvenile administrative fees—through calls, notices, and other collection activities—constituted a 3 continuing course of wrongful conduct.

4 79. Although Petitioners dispute whether they were required to file a government claim
5 given the character of their claims, on December 21, 2019, Petitioners filed a government claim on 6 behalf of themselves and others similarly situated with Riverside County to exhaust any 7 administrative remedies they may have had.

8 80. Riverside County did not respond to Petitioners’ claim within 45 days and therefore 9 denied their claims. Cal. Gov’t Code § 912.4.

11 CLASS ALLEGATIONS

12 Class Definition: Petitioners Shirley and Daniel Freeman seek to bring this action on their own
13 behalf and on behalf of all others similarly situated. Petitioners Shirley and Daniel Freeman seek 14 to represent the following proposed class:

15 All parents or guardians who made involuntary and/or voluntary payments for 16 juvenile administrative fees purportedly assessed by Respondents.

17 81. Numerosity: The class is too numerous for joinder in this action. The class consists 18 of thousands of parents and guardians. The membership is ascertainable from Respondents’ records.

19 82. Common Questions of Law and Fact: Common issues of law and fact predominate 20 this action. The overriding question common to all is whether Riverside County complied with its 21 statutory obligations under Sections 903 and 903.45, and class members’ constitutional due process
22 rights prior to beginning collection activities, including:

23 a. determining parents’ and guardians’ ability to pay juvenile administrative fees,
24 including costs of support;

25 b. providing parents and guardians with notice of their alleged liability for juvenile 26 administrative fees and the Respondents’ determination of the parent’s or guardian’s ability to pay;

27 c. providing parents and guardians with notice of their right to an opportunity to dispute
28 the Respondents’ conclusion regarding their ability to pay or liability for fees; and

1 d. obtaining a court order requiring parents and guardians to pay a specific amount of 2 juvenile administrative fees, or otherwise obtaining an enforceable court order.

3 These common questions predominate over any questions of law or fact that pertain only to 4 individual petitioners.

5 83. Typicality of the Claims of Class Representatives: Petitioners Shirley and Daniel
6 Freeman’s claims are typical of the class in that they experienced most or all of the conduct
7 described immediately above. Specifically, Riverside County failed to comply with statutory and 8 constitutional requirements in their purported assessment and collection of juvenile administrative 9 fees.

10 84. Adequacy of Representation: Because Petitioners Shirley and Daniel Freeman are 11 Riverside County residents against whom Riverside County unlawfully charged and collected
12 juvenile administrative fees without complying with the state or federal constitutions or Sections
13 903 or 903.45, they will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the class defined above. No
14 conflict exists between the claims of Petitioners Shirley and Daniel Freeman and the claims of the 15 class, and Petitioners Shirley and Daniel Freeman have no interests adverse to the class. Petitioners’ 16 counsel are experienced legal services and class action attorneys who will adequately represent the 17 class.

18 85. Class Certification: Class certification is superior to other available methods for fair
19 and efficient adjudication of this controversy. The relief sought by individual class members is 20 small compared to the expense and burden of individual prosecution of this litigation. In addition,
21 class certification is superior because it will eliminate the need for unduly duplicative litigation,
22 which might result in inconsistent judgments. Finally, to class counsel’s knowledge, there has been 23 no substantial individual litigation concerning the present controversy. Petitioners know of no
24 difficulties in the management of this litigation that would preclude its maintenance as a class action.

1 FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

2 Ordinary Mandamus (CCP § 1085), Welf. & Inst. Code Sections 903 and 903.45

3 (All Petitioners Against All Respondents)

4 86. Petitioners re-allege and incorporate by reference each allegation set forth in
5 paragraphs 1–85.

6 87. Prior to their amendment in 2017, Sections 903 and 903.45 of the California Welfare
7 & Institutions Code set forth the statutory requirements of conducting an ability-to-pay 8 determination before beginning collection and obtaining an enforceable court order against 9 Petitioners and others similarly situated for juvenile administrative fees authorized by Section 903.

10 88. Respondents had a ministerial duty to follow the statutory procedures in Sections 903
11 and 903.45; to conduct an ability-to-pay determination before beginning collection; to obtain an 12 enforceable court order against Petitioners and others similarly situated for any juvenile 13 administrative fees allowable under Section 903; and to repay any amounts Respondents were not 14 authorized to collect.

15 89. Respondents violated their ministerial duty by failing to comply with the 16 requirements of Sections 903 and 903.45; by failing to conduct ability to pay determinations before
17 beginning collection; by failing to obtain enforceable court orders against Petitioners and others
18 similarly situated for any allowable juvenile administrative fees; and by failing to repay any amounts 19 Respondents were not authorized to collect.

20 90. Petitioners and others similarly situated have no plain, speedy or adequate remedy, 21 other than the relief sought here.

22 91. Petitioners seek, on behalf of themselves and others similarly situated, a writ of 23 mandate to compel Respondents to comply with their mandatory statutory duties and refrain from 24 violating statutory prohibitions, including by reimbursing Petitioners Shirley and Daniel Freeman 25 and others similarly situated for any voluntary or involuntary payments unlawfully collected by 26 Respondents, as set forth above.

3 Article 1, Section 7 of the California Constitution

4 (All Petitioners Against All Respondents)

5 92. Petitioners re-allege and incorporate by reference each allegation set forth in
6 paragraphs 1–91.

7 93. The California Constitution provides that a “person may not be deprived of life,
8 liberty, or property without due process of law.” Cal. Const., art. I, § 7.

9 94. Respondents deprived Petitioners Shirley and Daniel Freeman and others similarly 10 situated of their money, which is a form of property.

11 95. Respondents deprived all Petitioners of their statutory rights, which are liberty or 12 property interests.

13 96. In the context of government assessment of juvenile administrative fees against 14 parents and guardians, due process requires, at a minimum, adequate notice of their right to an
15 ability-to-pay determination and of their right to dispute any ability-to-pay determination in court
16 before liability was imposed; and a meaningful opportunity to be heard on all matters pertaining to
17 the assessment and collection of such administrative fees, including statutory and constitutional
18 defects.

19 97. Due process also requires compliance with all procedures prescribed by law.

20 98. Respondents had a ministerial duty to conduct assessment and collection of juvenile 21 administrative fees from parents and guardians in accordance with the Due Process Clause of Article
22 1, Section 7, of the California Constitution.

23 99. Respondents violated their ministerial duties by failing to provide parents and 24 guardians with adequate notice of their rights and the process required by Sections 903 and 903.45;
25 by failing to provide parents and guardians with an opportunity for a full and fair hearing, including 26 because of the allegations above, through Respondents’ failure to comply with the statutory 27 procedures in Sections 903 and 903.45; and by failing to repay any amounts Respondents were not
28 authorized to collect.

1 THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION

2 Violation of the Due Process Clause of the 3 Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution and 42 U.S.C. § 1983
4 (All Petitioners Against All Respondents)

5 100. Petitioners re-allege and incorporate by reference each allegation set forth in 6 paragraphs 1–99.

7 101. The Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution guarantees due process of law
8 before any state deprivation of a person’s “life, liberty, or property.” U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 1.

9 102. Respondents deprived Petitioners Shirley and Daniel Freeman and others similarly 10 situated of their money, which is a property interest.

11 103. Respondents deprived all Petitioners of their statutory rights, which create protected 12 property and liberty interests.

13 104. In the context of government assessment of juvenile administrative fees against 14 parents and guardians, due process requires, at a minimum, adequate notice of their right to an
15 ability-to-pay determination and of their right to dispute any ability-to-pay determination in court
16 before liability was imposed; and a meaningful opportunity to be heard on all matters pertaining to
17 the assessment and collection of such administrative fees, including statutory and constitutional
18 defects.

19 105. Respondents failed to provide the minimum degree of constitutionally required
20 procedural safeguards to Petitioners, who were charged and subjected to collection for juvenile 21 administrative fees despite an inability to pay those debts and a disregard for Petitioners’ statutorily-
22 created property and liberty interests, in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment.

23 106. Respondents’ failure to provide the minimum degree of constitutionally required
24 procedural safeguards to Petitioners through their policies, practices and/or customs amounted to 25 deliberate indifference to the Petitioners’ constitutional rights under the Fourteenth Amendment.

26 107. At all relevant times, Respondents’ acts and omissions were made under color of 27 state law to deprive the Petitioners of their federal right to due process within the meaning of 42
28 U.S.C. § 1983.

1 FOURTH CAUSE OF ACTION

2 Request for Restitution

3 (Petitioners Shirley and Daniel Freeman and Proposed Class Against All Respondents)

4 108. Petitioners re-allege and incorporate by reference each allegation set forth in
5 paragraphs 1–107.

6 109. Upon information and belief, Respondents knew that they were required to follow
7 statutory and constitutional procedures before seeking reimbursement from Petitioners for juvenile 8 administrative fees.

9 110. Upon information and belief, despite such knowledge, Respondents did not follow 10 such mandatory statutory and constitutional procedures before seeking reimbursement from 11 Petitioners.

12 111. Respondents knowingly accepted payments, including through their agent Enhanced
13 Collections, from Petitioners and others similarly situated that were obtained through Respondents’
14 false assertions that the Petitioners owed such money to Respondents.

15 112. Despite Petitioners’ demands for repayment of these funds fraudulently obtained by 16 Respondents, Respondents have not repaid Petitioners, nor others similarly situated.

17 FIFTH CAUSE OF ACTION

18 Code of Civil Procedure § 526a

25 tax within and to Riverside County, have been substantially affected by these illegal expenditures.

26 116. Judicial intervention in this dispute, and a declaration by the Court, is necessary to 27 resolve whether the Respondents’ assessment, continuous collection, and refusal to pay restitution 28 of juvenile administrative fees was and is unlawful and unconstitutional.
